Copyright 2017 by Ryan Niebuhr @ 2ndbde.org or as attributed.

HEADQUARTERS UNITED STATES ARM VIETNAM APO SEE Francisco 96307

NUMBER 2003

1 April 1966

AWARD OF THE SILVER STAR

1. TC 320. The following ANARD is announced.

COI, MONTE F. SPECIALIST FOUR E4 United States Army MMC, 2d En (Abn), 502d Inf, 1st Ede, 101st Abn Div, APO US Forces 96347

Awarded: Silver Star

Date action: 7 February 1966 Theater: Republic of Vietnam

Reason: For gallantry in action: Specialist Four Cor distinguished bisself on ? February 1966 while serving as a medical sidman during a compat mission near the village of My Conh, Republic of Vietnam. As Specialist Four Cox's platoon crossed a canal enroute to their objective, they encountered intense enall ares and machine gon fire. During the initial volley of fire, several casualties were sustained. Unmindful of the intense bustile fire, Specialist Four Cox moved across an open rice paddy to remader first aid to his wounded comrades who were twenty meters from the entrenched Met Cong. Having treated one man, he erawled to within firs meters of a Viet Cong machine gun position to administer medical treatment to another wounded trooper. Immediately after rendering first aid, he picked up the man and carried him seventy-five meters through intense bootile fire to a covered position. Specialist Four Cox then returned, siministered first aid to another wounded man, ploked him up, and carried him across the same field through intense hostile fire. With complete disregard for his personal safety, Specialist Four Cox egain returned through fifty meters of completely exposed battlefield to reach the wounded, treat their wounds, and direct others to carry them to cover. When all the wounded were evacuated, Specialist Four Cox left the battlefield. Through his courage, outstanding professional ability, and devotion to duty, he saved the lives of at least four American soldiers. The heroic actions of Specialist Four Cox were in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Army.

Anthority: By direction of the President under the provisions of the Act of Congress, approved 9 July 1918.